Alabama State Officials

As to Success of Similar Laws.

Three measures designed to re-organize the department of agriculture by establishing new regulations for fertilizer manufacturers, reducing the number of oil inspectors, and removing the board of horticulture and pomology from the capital to the experiment station at Griffin, were passed upon favorably Monday night by agricultural committee No. 1 of the house of representatives. A fourth bill approved is calculated to provide for control of diseases of sweet potatoes.

Approval by the committee was given to the fertilizer bill over a strong protest voiced by leading fertilizer manufacturers of the state, who appeared before the committee in a public hearing. Supporters of the measure introduced S. M. Dunwoody, commissioner of agriculture of Alabama, and H. M. Robertson, state chemist of Alabama, for the purpose of answering questions as to the success of the Alabama fertilizer law, which, it is claimed, is similar to the proposed new law for Georgia.

The fertilizer bill by Rutland, of Lee county; Stark, of Whitfield, and others, would require the manufacturers to stamp the number of pounds of each ingredient and the source of each on the tag and would also provide severe penalties for violation of the law.

The oil inspection bill, submitted by Neill, of Muscogee, Plant of Thomas and Stark, of Whitfield, seeks to provide six oil inspectors for the state instead of the 190 allowed by the present statute, and would place control of inspectors with the comptroller general instead of the commissioner of agriculture.

Tax Involved.
The sweet potato measure would create a state bureau for the control of diseases of this vegetable and would require commercial growers to pay a tax to be used in the prevention of sweet potato diseases. This bill is by Rutland, of Lee, and Tucker, of Berrien.

The horticulture and pomology bill would place this department at the experiment station at Griffin instead of with the agricultural department. The measure is by Representative Goolsby, of Monroe.

Henry Hodgson, treasurer of the Empire State Chemical company, of Athens; Charles D. Ellis, president of the Mutual Fertilizer company, of Savannah; E. H. Armstrong, general superintendent of the Southern Fertilizer and Chemical company, of Savannah, and Julian Williams, manager of the American Agricultural Chemical company, of Atlanta, spoke in opposition to the fertilizer bill, while discussion in favor of the measure was led by Eugene Talmadge, commissioner of agriculture.

The fertilizer manufacturers complained that the proposed law would be an unjust one; that the manufacturers already suffer enough when they make unintentional mistakes under the present law, and that the manufacturers would find it impossible to comply with the proposed statute.

Harrison and Smoot De-

nated, Says Mississippian

Washington, July 25.—(P)—Two senators, Smoot, of Utah, a republican, and Harrison, of Mississippi, a democrat, returned to the capital today and immediately issued statements urging President Coolidge to call congress into extra session.

Both declared this necessary to get an early start on tax legislation but differed over the extent the prospective reduction should go. While Smoot, who is chairman of the senate finance committee, suggested a cut of $300,000,000, Harrison came out for half a billion, contending that Smoot was proposing what the democrats had attempted to effect at the last session. The Mississippian also made a passing reference to the approaching presidential campaign. Although refusing to discuss the prospective democratic nominee, he predicted that if Al Smith is nominated the south will be for him. He also said the New York governor has both friends and "strong opposition" in the south.

Flood Control Legislation.
As to the work of the next congress, Harrison named flood control legislation as the outstanding task but said a start could be made on taxes while flood reports were being completed by the war department. Smoot also favored early consideration of the flood problem.

Representative Garrett, of Tennessee, the house democratic leader, issued a statement declaring congress should enact a tax bill along the lines of a measure sponsored last winter by Representative Garner, of Texas, ranking minority member of the ways and means committee. This bill proposed an estimated cut of $335,000,000.

Also reviewing the prospective program, Senator Edwards, democrat, New Jersey, favored passage of legislation to adjust alien property claims. Harrison mapped out a legislative program including the following in the order, he said, they should be enacted.

Britain Claims "Misrep-

At Geneva Await Reopening of Parley.

London, July 25.—(P)—The Morning Post and Daily Telegraph say that Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador at Washington, has been instructed to protest vigorously to the Washington authorities against anti-British propaganda in the American press, and "misrepresentation, even misquotation," of official British statements in connection with the naval conference at Geneva.

BRITISH AMBASSADOR IS SILENT ON REPORT.

Manchester, Mass., July 25.—(P)—Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador to the United States, tonight declined to comment on London reports that he had been instructed to protest the American press' handling of official British statements in connection with the Geneva naval conference. Efforts of reporters to see him at his summer home here were unavailing and over the telephone the ambassador reported through a servant that he had "not received any cablegram."

DELEGATES ANXIOUS OVER LONG WAIT.

Geneva, July 25.—(P)—The long suspension of the tripartite naval conference, due to the absence of the principal British delegates in London, was said today to have begun to create in Geneva the uncomfortable feeling that the conference might be headed towards an indefinite adjournment. There was no official reason for such a sentiment; it just grew by itself. Meantime, it is understood, there has been considerable cabling back and forth between the American delegation here and the state department in Washington. This was in order to be fully prepared for discussion of any new aspects of the naval problems on the return of W. C. Bridgman and Viscount Cecil, the chief British delegates.

The British are coming back; the British spokesman here said this was a certainty. He added that it was his personal conviction that the negotiations would end eventually in an agreement.

If the British delegates bring back new suggestions, it is said they will receive the earnest attention of the American delegation. There are no indications, however, that the Americans will recede from their attitude of insisting on freedom in construction of eight-inch gun cruisers.

Admiral Hilary P. Jones, of the American delegation, was indisposed today as the result of hard work during the past few weeks and the sudden changes of temperature.

TEACHER'S DEATH
HELD ACCIDENTAL

Male Members of Seattle
Yachting Party Are Declared "Cowards" in Jury's Verdict.

Seattle, Wash., July 25.—(P)—A report holding that the death of Miss Violet Maude Payne, 34-year-old music teacher, was accidental was returned here tonight by a coroner's jury.

F. Creigh Nelson refused to testify at the coroner's inquest, upon advice of his attorneys. He was released on bond of $20,000 after obtaining a writ of habeas corpus.

The yacht skipper, E. F. Barrington, and Mrs. Winona Gorman were released without bail. Miss Payne lost her life early last Wednesday while attending a party on the yacht of Nelson, who is a wealthy Seattle broker and club man, at which drinks were served.

Three of those who were aboard the yacht at the time testified at the coroner's inquest, that the music teacher slipped and fell into Lake Union here while stepping from the yacht to the wharf.

The witnesses at the inquest were Captain Bell, skipper of Nelson's yacht; Mrs. Gorman, a friend of Miss Payne; and Barrington, assistant secretary of the Seattle Yacht Club.

Little effort was made to rescue the woman, the testimony showed, and the affair was "hushed up" and reported as a disappearance to avoid unfavorable publicity.

The male members of the party were declared by the coroner's jury to be "cowards and morally responsible" for the girl's death, but the jurors found no evidence which, in their opinion, warranted criminal action.

Photographs of Many National Political Celeb-

Effects of Stephenson.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 25.—(P)—The contents of D. C. Stephenson's black boxes, which he has said will substantiate his charges of political corruption in Indiana, today were spread before the eyes of William H. Remy, Marion county prosecutor, and his special assistants, who have been investigating the alleged irregular relationships between the former Klux Klan leader and certain public officials and politicians.

Gratified and enthusiastic over what their find contained, the special prosecutors dug into the mass of bank books, check stubs, telegrams, photographs, a Marion county deputy sheriff's badge and Klan papers which were included in the material, but their only comment was that the documents were "valuable."

10,000 Letters.
The two boxes and some 10,000 letters were turned over to Emsley W. Johnson, special assistant to Remy, near Washington, Ind., last Saturday by L. G. Julian, former business associate of Stephenson, acting on orders from the former grand dragon who is serving a life term in Indiana state prison at Michigan City. Johnson brought them to Indianapolis today and they were opened at Remy's home.

"Things were not done on a cheap scale," Johnson commented as he inspected two cancelled checks for $24,000 and $21,000 respectively. Remy, with what looked like a typewritten contract in his hand, said that "that will line up the whole business."

Autographed Photos.
Included in the material was a large photograph with the signature of Governor Ed Jackson. The prosecutor said personally autographed photographs of many national political figures also were found among Stephenson's effects.

Two Marion county grand juries have investigated the charges of irregularities in state politics. The first failed to return indictments; the second was discharged when allegations were made that it had been tampered with. The present grand jury will end its session Friday unless called by special request. Judge James A. Collins, of criminal court, announced today that he would give additional instructions to the jury tomorrow but that he would not be present.

The British are coming back; the British spokesman here said this was a certainty. He added that it was his personal conviction that the negotiations would end eventually in an agreement.

Five Priceless Miniatures of Days of King Charles Disappear.

New York, July 25.—(United News)—The supposedly impregnable Metropolitan Museum of Art, where New York's proudest treasures are guarded night and day like the riches of a Persian king, has been looted of one of its most exotic exhibits—five seventeenth century miniatures in ivory.

After wrinking their brows over the strange theft for exactly a week, police Monday night finally announced its occurrence with the admission that they were completely baffled.

The only thing they are sure of is that no low-brow second story man left those gaping holes in the heavy glass show case adjacent to the J. Pierpont Morgan collection.

The perpetrator exercised the rarest discrimination in selecting the little baubles of the England of Charles II. Their value to a rabid collector is of such proportions that none of the museum authorities would hazard a guess at it.

"Extremely valuable," they told the police and let it rest there.

A horrified inspector discovered the theft last Tuesday morning when the museum was opened for the day.

He found the show case piled open as ruthlessly as a sardine tin. But the five bits of ivory, each about three inches square, had been lifted from their insets with the painstaking skill of a jeweler.

All around were priceless pieces of art, many of them world famous in contrast to the miniatures, whose existence was known to only a comparatively few connoisseurs. But nothing else had been touched.

The miniatures were encased in hand-engraved gold and encircled with rhinestones perfectly matched. Their subjects were likenesses of four women and a man, participants in the English court life of the seventeenth century.

LOUISIANA TRIO
LOSE IN EFFORTS TO DELAY TRIAL

Selection of Jury Begins in Lake Tragedy Case.
Three Defendants Go on Trial Together.

Franklin, La., July 25.—(P)—One juror had been selected to try the three defendants on trial for murder in St. Mary criminal court when adjournment was ordered by Judge James D. Simon at 10:30 o'clock tonight.

The defendants are Mrs. Ada Bonner Leboeuf, Dr. Thomas E. Dreher, her alleged lover, and James Beadle, jointly indicted for murdering James J. Leboeuf, husband of the woman defendant.

The juror selected was William Bartlett, of Patterson, a farmer and mill-right. He was taken to the top floor of the courthouse to spend the night in custody of a deputy sheriff.

Jurors to Be Locked Up.
The jurors will be locked up at night and will not be allowed to communicate with anyone or to read newspapers.

Before he was selected the defense had challenged three of the panel without cause and one was excused for cause. The prosecution peremptorily challenged one. Only six of the panel of 30 was examined tonight.

Day sessions were spent arguing four motions to quash the jury venire, all of which were overruled by Judge James D. Simon.

Defense attorneys moved tonight that the trial be continued until the next term of criminal court on the ground that a material witness was absent from the state.

Witness Absent.
James R. Parkerson, chief defense counsel, said the absence of the witness, Robert Toerner, would seriously damage the case of the defendants.

Toerner, Mr. Parkerson said, would testify that on the afternoon of the alleged slaying, which is said to have taken place at night, he met Leboeuf and that Leboeuf showed him a small black automatic pistol in his shirt and told him he had arranged for a meeting that night with Dr. Dreher on the lake and that he was taking the pistol along because he didn't know what might happen.

Mr. Parkerson said a subpoena was issued on July 20 for Toerner, but he was believed to be out of the state. District Attorney Emile Vuilleumot, in arguing against the continuance, declared that if the witness were present, his testimony would not be admissible because it could not be proved that Leboeuf had not changed his mind later about the meeting with Dreher.

The district attorney said that in order not to delay the trial he would admit that Toerner, if present, would testify to the allegations contained in the motion, but that he, however, would not admit the truth of the statements. Mr. Vuilleumot declared.

With that understanding both sides announced their readiness for the trial to begin.

The district attorney asked the prospective jurors if they had any conscientious scruples against imposing the death penalty, whether they were related to the defendants and the other usual questions.

The defense attorney made no motion to sever the indictment and the trio went on trial together.

Approving by a three-to-one vote, a resolution abolishing all service fees at the Steiner clinic for cancer at Grady hospital, the "hospital and charities" committee of city council on Monday night established sweeping reductions in the cost of treatment in the clinic, to become effective immediately.

The action will do away with a practice heretofore permissible wherein visiting members of the clinic staff charged service fees from "pay patients." Before going to New York on Monday night established sweeping reductions in the cost of treatment in the clinic, to become effective immediately.

PEACE AND HARMONY
REIGN FOR WEDDING.

Grand Anse, Que., July 25.—(P)—Preparations were completed tonight for the sylvan wedding tomorrow at which Lena Wilson, child of the Canadian woods, will become the bride of "Bud" Stillman, son of a wealthy and socially prominent New York family.

As in fairy stories, from which this young Prince Charming seemed to come to woo and win the woodland lass, the witch of discord, who a few days ago threatened to mar the course of true love, has been banished and the eve of the wedding found all serene with principals and their families.

Tomorrow will witness an unusual scene when well-groomed society folk, friends of the bridegroom and his family, will meet and mingle in the equality of guests with the French-Canadian woodsmen and their women folk, for the whole countryside has been invited and accepted the invitation in no equivocal terms.

Some of the local guests were on their way tonight, for the roads leading to the Stillman camp, rough trails at the best, were deep in mud and many of the woods folk had far to come.

The ceremony will be performed by Father L. Arme, cure of Grand Anse, assisted by three other Roman Catholic priests from Three Rivers. Special dispensation has been granted for the marriage by Monsignor Cloutier, bishop of Three Rivers, for the bridegroom is a non-Catholic.

Through Mrs. Stillman's diplomacy, all Lena's relatives have been reconciled. And tomorrow night after supper from their farms along the river at Latuque, they will be straining their feet to dance to the tunes of Scotch big-pipes on a platform outside the Stillman lodge.

FRANCE TO CALL FOR NEW TERMS,
TARDIEU ASSERTS

U. S. "ASSURANCE"

France Regards Obligation as Part of Contribution of U. S. Toward World War, He States.

Washington, July 25.—(P)—The Mellon-Berenger debt agreement between the United States and France is as good as "dead" in the opinion of Andre Tardieu, French high commissioner to this country during the world war and subsequently a member of Poincare's cabinet. He predicted a new one would have to be negotiated if the debt were to be finally liquidated.

In an interview published in the current issue of the Nation's Business magazine, he insisted that France regards the debt as a part of America's contribution to the war, adding that "no French government will ever take the responsibility of binding France for 62 years of debt payments."

"Our people would never understand, our parliament would never approve," he declared. "The debt is dead."

Tardieu analyzed the causes of misunderstanding between the United States and France and placed large share of the blame upon America's "wonderful assurance that you alone know what is right."

This assurance was based upon worship of "worldly goods," he said and that Americans easily forgot that European conditions are so different, that America's greed of success is unapplicable across the Atlantic.

Hits French Policy.
He contended France's error has been conduct of her policies with too much sentimentality and "knowing that Americans respect success, the French have done everything to make believe they are wasters and inefficient."

In fact, he added, France's policy could have been more unfortunate had she purposely endeavored to lose America's friendship.

"The trouble with most Americans is that they honestly believe that they are better than the men of other lands, because they have more worldly goods," Tardieu said.

Europe's poverty as contrasted to America's wealth, he held, the result of a "war of unparalleled ferocity and magnitude," recalling that of the 62 months of hostilities the United States "was really in the fight" only eight months.

"Of the other 44 months," he continued, "you spent 32 in neutrality and 12 in military inactivity."

Psychological factors, he concluded.

CHAMPION TELLS OWN STORY OF AIR FIGHT

helmet with the face mask made into it.

My hands were covered with light-fur-lined gloves with a large fur-covered mitten on the outside.

Oxygen Equipment.

The oxygen equipment used was of the simplest. Two small flasks of one litre capacity each contained oxygen gas at a pressure of about 2,000 pounds per square inch. The oxygen was led through a small tube to an ordinary commercial pressure-reducing valve, such as is used for oxygen welding equipment.

The valve to more regulate the flow of oxygen at will. From the reducing valve the oxygen was passed through a small flow meter on the instrument board from which I could determine the exact amount of oxygen being used. From the flow meter the oxygen passed through a small rubber tube to a mouthpiece I held in my teeth.

A little before 7 o'clock I took off from the air station field, everything functioning perfectly. The plane climbed

HIGHEST FLIER

LIEUT. CARLTON G. CHAMPION, who is believed to have broken the air-plane altitude record. He reported Monday that he had ascended 47,000 feet. The present recognized record is held by a French aviator, Gallie, with 40,820 feet. Champion's record is not yet official.

rapidly and smoothly for about 40 minutes. I turned on a small supply of oxygen at about 5,000 feet, oxygen is not necessary at this altitude but I have found that if one is going above moderate heights it is extremely desirable to start the oxygen considerably below where it will be felt.

This first oxygen prevents the pilot drawing on his reserve strength for some time before he becomes conscious of it, and permits the lungs to readjust themselves to taking oxygen in the pure form by the time an excess amount will be needed.

Circles Field.

In climbing I circled the field in spirals of increasing diameter until at a height of 20,000 feet I found a southwest wind to compensate for my forward speed. Flying directly into this wind I was able to continue climbing without making any very great advance over the ground.

At this altitude I had nothing to do but watch the city of Washington become smaller and smaller, and the Chesapeake bay and the eastern shore of Maryland appear to come closer and closer.

This continued until I had reached an altitude which probably will never be determined. I could judge my altitude only by the specially accurate test altimeter mounted on the instrument board.

With the experience of a great number of flights above 30,000 feet I am able to form a rough idea of altitude by the amount of oxygen required for normal conditions.

The true altitude is determined after each flight by the records brought back by two barographs mounted for the purpose in the airplane. Immediately after starting down I noticed that my altimeter indicated 47,000 feet before reaching the maximum altitude. I immediately investigated the condition which existed. It required more oxygen than the service supply would furnish. When at some altitude I am confident I had never attained before things began to happen so rapidly.

I cannot be sure exactly what took place. My first indication of trouble was a severe vibration in the plane. I immediately investigated everything within sight from the cockpit. The exertion incident to this did not immediately. I realized I was not in full possession of my faculties and immediately opened the emergency valve on the instrument board which admits large volumes of oxygen from a separate tank to the mouthpiece.

Unusual Positions.

This seemed to do no good, and I found myself in various unusual positions, first with the plane headed straight upward and then straight downward.

HOUNDS TRAILING 4 BANK ROBBERS

For a while I was not aware what happened, and cared little so long as I knew I was descending rapidly. I then realized there was a very severe vibration throughout the entire plane and that the oxygen mouthpiece was hanging by the rubber tubes in the cockpit.

I can only assume that the first shock of vibration, or my movement in inspecting the plane had pulled the mouthpiece away from me and that, therefore, neither the service nor the emergency oxygen was reaching its destination.

I managed to get the mouth piece back through the helmet into my teeth a big blast from the emergency supply quickly restored me to normal. I then discovered that the vibration was much more severe than I had realized and there was a fire around the engine.

A violent side slip followed by a dive blew out the fire. At that time I was at an indicated altitude of 39,000 feet. The dive nearly proved the undoing of the whole performance as the vibration in the engine, driven by the propeller acting as a windmill, seemed as if it would tear the engine from its mounting.

First Fire Out.

With the fire out, and the gas supply shut off at the tank I was able to take stock again. The whole plane continued to vibrate badly but to fly normally; at least the controls were working satisfactorily.

After that experience I glided toward the field as slowly as I deemed necessary to minimize the vibration. Immediately thereafter, the engine again caught fire.

I was forced to repeat the side slip and diving, and again put out the fire. But the resultant vibration was so great that something else in the engine mounting evidently carried away. What was left of the engine seemed to sag and swing in a most disturbing fashion. With the engine gone, the plane would have been so badly balanced it would have spun down tail first.

In the vicinity of 15,000 to 20,000 feet, fire broke out again in the engine section. It was apparent no further diving could be made. I side-slipped as violently as possible and the fire flew away from the engine until it had apparently burned itself out. In the side slip I was losing altitude rapidly and I hoped to be able to get the plane to earth without allowing it to its own devices.

After losing several thousand feet, I felt again straightened out with the intentions of making some distance toward the field in fighting the fire. I had to ignore my position entirely, and had gone some distance from my landing place.

Another Fire.

Immediately after starting to descend, fire again broke out with the greatest violence it had shown and it was evident that combustion of the hot lubricating oil spilled from the damaged engine was the cause.

I still had 10,000 feet altitude to lose. I tried in vain to blow the fire out or to keep it clear of the upper wing by side slipping. Finally I decided it would be impossible to bring the plane safely down, so I loosened my safety belt and prepared to jump.

It occurred to me, however, that the altimeter had indicated an altitude attained, a record I wanted to bring back. As the fire was confined to the engine section and as there was no great urgency in leaving the plane at that instant, I decided to try other means of blowing out the fire, even at the expense of losing the engine, and the tail spin certain to follow.

I therefore continued to side slip and allow the nose to drop, changing the side slip to a dive. Using the nose so gained, I was able to pull the nose to a vertical position from which the plane slid down tail first. Nothing but the excellent flying characteristics of the Wright "Apache" and the perfect control at all altitudes and speeds, made it possible to do this without a snap stall, which would have thrown the engine out.

Travels Backward.

With the plane traveling backward and away from the engine, the flames were blown away from all parts of the structure. At the same time, this series of maneuvers resulted in an extremely rapid loss of altitude. At the end the fire was out, perhaps due to the maneuvers and perhaps to the exhaustion of combustible material.

I was also fortunate in finding myself near the landing field so I could make a normal landing in a small patch of cultivated ground at the end of the regular landing area.

Upon inspection of the plane, immediately after landing, I was forced to conclude there had been some interruption in the lubricating oil supply. Seven cylinder heads were completely missing as were the pistons and connecting rods from the cylinders. The two remaining cylinder heads were badly cracked and the pistons and rods missing.

The rear end of engine and supports as remained around it were badly damaged, showing that the parts which was lost had left with great violence.

One Paragraph Spoiled.

To my disappointment, I found that one paragraph had been completely demolished by the parts thrown from the engine and that other had been so badly shaken up on the return journey that its records might be worthless.

An amusing incident in this whole unfortunate performance was due to the fact that my engine disintegrated

Winchester, Va., July 25.—(AP)—Bloodhounds from Keyser, W. Va., turned loose early tonight in the great north mountains of West Virginia were believed by police to be closing in on the two men and two women wanted for holding up and robbing the National Bank of Mount Jackson, Va., of $2,000 this morning.

An automobile, bearing a district of Columbia license number M-3225, was found abandoned in the late afternoon west of Mount Jackson, on the main road leading to Lost City, W. Va. Officers say it contained several suit cases filled with clothing, letters and hundreds of keys, and it is believed that the sedan had been stolen by the bandits.

Police say they have information that Charles Wilson, of Ardernville, W. Va., remained at the steering wheel of the machine with the motor running while the man said to be Kirby B. Dellinger and the two women went into the bank ostensibly to get a mutilated $10 bill exchanged and then scooped up all the cash in sight after covering three officials of the bank with pistols.

Washington, July 25.—(United Press)—A young man, who has been flying a plane seven miles in the air to keep it from dropping in the business district of Washington, Lieut. C. G. Champion, Jr., naval flying ace, rode it to safety in one of the most dramatic falls in the history of aviation.

Just previous to his desperate battle in the clouds, Lieut. Champion had reached a height indicated on his altimeter as 47,000 feet—5,000 feet higher than the world's record.

Seven miles he dropped with his engine torn to pieces. Four times his plane caught fire and four times he put out the flames by side slips and risks.

Risks Life For Others.

Any aviator who has been justified in leaping out of the wounded ship with his parachute, but Lieut. Champion stuck at the rudder controls.

"If I had jumped, the plane would have dropped into the business district of Washington and someone might have been killed," he said.

Four miles he descended, falling. Lieut. Champion landed his plane right side up in a corn field near the Potomac river. Then he stepped from the cockpit without a scratch.

Chenoweth, of Roberton, Alabama, answered a number of technical questions on fertilizer manufacturing, stating also that the manufacturers of Alabama are cooperating with the state in the enforcement of the Alabama law. He said, in reply to a question, that the Georgia and Alabama laws are practically the same, and went further to say that it is true that farmers have to know the constituents of fertilizer in order to make an intelligent purchase of guano.

Commissioner Dunwoody, of Alabama, said that the new Alabama law is working successfully, and that it prevents manufacturers from using a cheap filler in place of the fertilizer. He gave it as his opinion that a law requiring fertilizer manufacturers to state within 10 per cent of the ingredients composing their fertilizer could be enforced.

The Alabama law has meant a saving of a million dollars a year to farmers of that state, chiefly through preventing the excessive use of sand filler, he said.

At least we succeeded in confining our activities to regular aviation ground where the attitude toward such matter is more sympathetic than it might have been elsewhere.

The engines used in this flight were both the same we used in making the world's altitude record for seaplanes May 5, and again on July 4, when the record was put up to 37,995 feet. The only change made since that time was in the landing gear, changed from the seaplane type to the land plane type.

I attribute the safe return of the plane to the excellence of the material. In spite of the most severe conditions imaginable, the entire damage done was that which was formerly due directly to the initial cause of failure.

After a hurried examination of the remaining paragraph at the bureau standards, it was stated that an altitude of between 37,000 and 38,000 feet was indicated, considerably short of the world's record of 40,820 feet. This, however, is entirely unimportant as it will require about 36 hours to calibrate the instrument.

Should calibration, either because of damage to the barograph or the otherwise fail to substantiate Lieut. Champion's claim, he will not receive official credit for a new record.

W. W. TARLETON, assistant purchasing agent of the Georgia Power company, who was drowned in one of the company's lakes near Gainesville some time between Saturday night and Monday morning, when the corpse was found, was carried from Gainesville at 9:10 o'clock this morning to Anniston, Ala., where funeral and interment will take place Wednesday afternoon from the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Butenschon, parents of Mrs. Tarleton. These plans were made Monday night following the arrival of the widow, father and sister of Mr. Tarleton in Gainesville. Mrs. Tarleton and their two small children were visiting relatives in Anniston at the time of the tragedy.

Death of the company official came by accidental drowning, it was decided Monday afternoon by a coroner's jury at Gainesville, where Mr. Tarleton's body was taken after it was found about 10:30 o'clock Monday morning, three miles from Gainesville, at the W. W. Tarleton dam of the Dunlap Power company.

Mr. Tarleton disappeared Saturday evening from a camp owned by the power company, at Lake Warner, after having motored there earlier in the day. Throughout the night searches scoured the neighboring country and Sunday morning the process of draining the lake began.

When taken from the water, Mr. Tarleton's body bore no marks of violence and he was fully attired with the exception of his hat and coat, which he had discarded early in the afternoon on reaching the camp. His watch and money had not been disturbed.

Mr. Tarleton left Atlanta Saturday morning with R. C. Hunt and P. H. Nabors, also employees of the power company, to spend the week-end at the camp. During the dinner hour that night Mr. Tarleton excused himself from the table, stating that he was feeling a little ill and thought he would feel better if he got in the fresh air. That was the last his friends saw of him until his body was taken from the lake at the dam.

Coroner D. C. Stow, of Hall county, called an inquest at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon to clear up the details surrounding the mishap. It was reported to Mr. Stow that tracks, believed to be made by Mr. Tarleton, had been found leading to the bank of the Chattahoochee river, about a quarter of a mile above the dam. There were no other tracks at that point and Mr. Tarleton evidently had pushed through a deep undergrowth to reach the river bank, Mr. Stow stated.

The inquest was held at the undertaking establishment of Stow & Co. The verdict reached by the coroner's jury follows: "We, the jury, empaneled to investigate the cause of the death of W. W. Tarleton, find that he came to his death by accidental drowning in Lake Warner, Chattahoochee river."

DIVORCE SEEKER ASKS $1,200,000

Cleveland, Ohio, July 25.—(AP)—Demanding alimony equal to the $1,200,000 she would inherit if her millionaire husband, Edward Grasselli, would die, J. Paul Lamb, attorney for Mrs. Helen Long Grasselli, New York, closed his argument today in the divorce suit against Grasselli.

Claiming that Mrs. Grasselli is about to become a "widow" far from concerned, Lamb said Mrs. Grasselli was entitled to the highest alimony her husband was capable of paying. Grasselli's fortune was placed at $2,000,000 by Lamb.

Gross neglect is charged by Mrs. Grasselli in her suit which will enter its final stages tomorrow when Homer H. McKeehan, an attorney, presents arguments in defense of Grasselli.

Today's closing argument for the plaintiff based charges that Grasselli worked but four of the 15 years of his married life; that he lavished money and jewels on a 25-year-old woman who formerly worked in a New York department store, referred to as "J. A. D." in testimony; and that he was guilty of infidelity to Mrs. Grasselli.

Lamb insisted that Mrs. Grasselli should be granted sufficient alimony to permit her to continue the same standard of living to which she became accustomed during the last 15 years. He pointed out that Grasselli and his wife spent $1,000,000 during that time.

"It is not a question as to whether Mrs. Grasselli can live adequately on $24,000 a year or not," Lamb said. "It is a question of how much alimony Mrs. Grasselli is entitled to from the fortune of her husband who has grossly neglected her."

Grasselli had been giving her that amount since their separation.

Husband Employed Thugs To Harass Her, Says Wife

CLAIMS MILLIONAIRE SOUGHT TO DEPORT HER

New York, July 25.—(AP)—Percy K. Hudson, member of the New York stock exchange and a direct descendant of Hendrick Hudson, was accused today by his wife of having used every method within his $5,000,000 means to "harass and annoy her."

Mrs. Hudson, in a supplemental complaint filed today in her suit for divorce, charged that the Wall Street man had "thugs and gunmen" follow and strike her, and that he had even tried to have her deported from this country.

Mrs. Hudson, who is said to have been a Hungarian motion picture actress before her marriage November 15, 1925, said her husband had told the immigration authorities that she was not of good moral character and had evaded customs in importing jewelry.

The Hudsons' marital actions became a public nature in May, 1926, when in opposing his wife's application for alimony pending trial of a separation suit on grounds of desertion, Hudson's counsel announced that the broker was allowed no time after his marriage. He said that he would enter his home "only on his wife's express invitation," although he had spent $40,000 on furnishings.

The first of the present year the Broker Hudson was permitted to change his counter-attack from separation to divorce from Mrs. Hudson and in the new action accused his wife of being friendly with an employee of a detective agency.

In her supplemental complaint, Mrs. Hudson today charged that her husband had bribed and intimidated her witnesses so that they would not testify in her behalf, and that he had had detectives tap her telephone wires, bribe employees to pilfer her mail, and had disreputable persons call her "vile and unprintable names" in the street and other public places.

Navy Secretary Urges Strong Defense Policy

Thomaston, Me., July 25.—(AP)—Uncertainties of the past in national defense must be done away with, so far as possible, Curtis D. Wilbur, secretary of the navy, declared in an address here today at exercises in honor of the memory of Major General Henry Knox, the first secretary of war after the declaration of independence in 1776.

If Alertox Fails In Biliousness Call A Doctor

This new preparation acts with time-clock precision in 30 to 60 minutes; gives one thorough elimination and no more; does not interfere with duties, habits or diet, and is guaranteed to remove, in one action, more poison from the system than any other known formula, leaving you buoyant, vivacious and alert, mentally and physically.

These are but a few of the many wonderful advantages of this latest discovery known as "Alertox," which cleanses the alimentary tract and reestablishes a natural, healthy liver and bowel action, and is much quicker, more palatable and far more effective than calomel, aloes or other nauseating cathartics that merely drag the liver and work you to death.

Alertox also alkalizes the system and thoroughly cleanses it of the poisons that cause auto-intoxication. Get a bottle from your druggist, and if you are not satisfied after taking one dose, get your money back. If your druggist cannot supply Alertox, send direct upon receipt of price, 40c. was born in Boston 177 years ago today, and died here in 1806.

With reference to aviation, Secretary Wilbur said:

"This new weapon for offense and defense—the airplane and its equipment—does not furnish a cheap and simple solution of the problems of national defense. It has not rendered obsolete either armies or navies, guns, tanks or ships.

"It has only added another essential element to the intricate equipment necessary to national defense against a well-prepared foe. It has added another element for the quick transportation of machine guns, bombs, and men, and a new method of attack by machine guns, bombs and torpedoes. It has given a new method of inter-communication and scouting. It has added new peril to the enemy and a new source of defense to ourselves.

"The fact is that the cost of aviation is a staggering addition to the load involved in maintenance of national defense, and when we say that, we mean the maintenance of a great nation.

"But the expenditures for our navy are not a national loss in time of peace. The navy of the United States has become a great school or a great university for training of men and officers.

Problem Difficult.
"The nations at Geneva thought to prepare an agenda for the limitations of armaments and of military power, but the more the problem is studied, the more difficult it seems to effect such a limitation or such an agreement.

"The results of this conference are not yet manifest, but whatever they may be, the fact remains that if we are to have a navy, we must build one. If we are to maintain parity with Great Britain, it will be only because we build up to, and continue to maintain, parity.

"The point, after all, is that there is no royal road for the security of the nation. That security must depend upon sacrifices made by the people of the nation upon a recognition of the facts concerning human life and human responsibilities, and a willingness to undertake the responsibility incident to the advantages we have already achieved as a nation."

Secretary Wilbur paid tribute to the work of Frederick Hale, of Portland, Me., chairman of the senate naval affairs committee, and to Rear Admiral Charles F. Hughes, commander of the Atlantic and Pacific fleets, and native of Bath, Me., of Admiral Hughes he said they thought so much of him in Washington that they were to make him chief of naval operations in September. Admiral Hughes came here during the afternoon.

LIBRARY SCHOOL OPENS AT EMORY

Emory University, Ga., July 25.—(Special.)—That the schools of the country are swinging back to the study of the child as an individual rather than mass teaching was the declaration here tonight of Dr. William F. Russell, principal speaker at the first session of the library institute, which opened here today.

The institute was opened by a welcome address of Dr. Harvey W. Cox, president of Emory university, which was responded to by Dr. L. R. Wilson of the University of North Carolina, who pointed out that the activity of the Atlanta libraries had done much to promote the library idea in the south.

Dr. Russell spoke on the subject, "The Library as an Educator." He said the library is more like the schools that were and those that will be than the schools of today. "Books in a library," said the speaker, "are grouped into subjects and it is the duty of the librarian to find the literature best suited to each child or individual, therefore the teaching of tomorrow will be more like the library of today than like the teacher of today."

Schools are getting back to the idea of the individual rather than to groups or mass education and more study is being given to the needs in the way of education of each child and those needs are being supplied by training along individual lines.

"This has always been the mission of the library—to give to each individual just the kind of information wanted on any subject."

The importance of the use of libraries to the individual, in the home, business and school was stressed by the speaker.

The institute is being sponsored by the American Library Association and the Library School of Carnegie Library, Atlanta, which is affiliated with Emory university. The sessions will last through Saturday, August 6.

Classes, conferences and round-table discussions will be conducted each day during the conference and the direction of Louis Round Wilson, director of the University of North Carolina library, and Miss Tommie Dora Barker, director of the Emory Library school.

GEM THIEF TURNS "POET" ON FACING PRISON SENTENCE
New York, July 25.—(United News.)—The crook known as Boston Billy Williams wrote some very bad poetry handed in to the chief clerk of the court Monday to plead guilty to two indictments charging him with grand larceny and burglary, both in the first degree.

Because he is a second offender, James Francis Monahan, the prison's real name, faces a sentence of 30 years' imprisonment for his crimes against the law. For his crime against fate no penalty can be inflicted.

He ranked in Boston Billy's heart against his former pal, Arthur Barry, who confessed to jewel robberies involving Monahan, and was sentenced to 25 years in Sing Sing.

He stated, it appears, in his motion to inspire good lyrics. As witness:

"They called Barry a shiek,
"But I think he's a freak."
"When his hair is died
"He's as gray as a bat."
"Does that make him a dirty rat?"

Boston Billy pleaded guilty specifically to those indictments returned in connection with the theft of $30,000 worth of jewelry from Harry Aronson and his wife when they were guests of Jesse L. Livermore at Kings Point on May 23.

Man, Girl Held After Arrest In Local Hotel

Alleged to have been lured from her home in Macon, Ga., by an alluring advertisement for "saleswomen," Lillian McMullin, 15-year-old girl, was arrested by police in a local hotel Monday in the company of a man giving his name as J. E. Bachman, 31, of Bluff City, Tenn. Both were held pending arrival of the girl's mother.

The arrest was effected in singular manner, W. A. Carroll, police officer of Macon, came to Atlanta recently to study methods employed by the bureau of identification here. Monday he put what he had learned in practice by identifying the McMullin girl. Summoning City Detective C. L. Taylor, he surprised the couple and took them to the station for investigation.

Bachman gave his address as Tennessee but police say he comes from Virginia. He said he was a laborer but officers claim he is a piano-tuner. He said he was 31 and police believe him. They are investigating his assertion to the effect that he had simply assisted the girl to register at the hotel when she found herself in difficulty.

The girl said little. Police expect the mother to say plenty.

Philobosian Offers Better Quality for Less Money in Furniture, Rugs Drapery Beautiful Home Furnishing Store Can Afford to Give Greater Value Because of the Policy of Selling Only for Cash.

Exclusive in appearance yet not expensive an apt description of the beautiful furniture, rugs and drapery on display at the store of Stephen Philobosian, Inc.

Anyone planning the purchase of home furnishings of any kind will realize by a trip to this store that here is a most extraordinary opportunity to select furnishings that will give the home a most distinctive appearance and at the same time permit an economy that one little expects in buying such merchandise.

The fame of Stephen Philobosian, Inc., for quality merchandise has become well known throughout the southeast. People from many different states come here to make purchases because they are unable to find furniture and rugs of this character in their own community.

In not quite a year Stephen Philobosian, Inc., has established a splendid patronage—a reputation for real quality merchandise at prices that are surprisingly low because of the firm's policy of selling only for cash.

Doing a cash business in furniture, rugs and drapery permits the same economies of store operation in this line that it does with other cash stores, although the saving in furniture is a much greater.

When a person pays all cash they expect to buy for less and that is what anyone can do at Stephen Philobosian, Inc.—(Adv.)

11 Jurors Sworn In Trial of Man Who Killed Nine

Tampa, Fla., July 25.—(AP)—Eleven jurors were chosen today in the trial of Benjamin Franklin Levens, confessed murderer of nine, and charged specifically with the murder with a railroad spike cleaver last May of Loomer Merrell and his wife.

In a confession made in the Orange county jail Levens admitted slaying three members of the Bee Dee Rowell family and a roomer at their home with an ax last summer and involved Leonard H. Thompson, who was arrested with him after the Merrell deaths. Loomer Merrell, his wife and three children were murdered as they slept, and Levens confessed that he killed them, mistaking them for another family, while he was under the influence of denatured alcohol. He also involved Thompson in these murders.

Spectators were barred from the court room this morning and one of the first acts of the court was the severance of cases of the two defendants on motion of Levens' attorneys.

Both Levens and Thompson were indicted by a recent grand jury for the deaths of the two elder Merrells, but the indictments did not mention the Merrell children nor the Rowell family.

Both Levens and Thompson were arrested the day after the Merrell deaths and in a confession that night Levens' involved Thompson.

A return check, we are told, can cause no end of trouble. Yet it is often a matter of no account.

LAWYER SAYS BEN WILL TAKE STAND

St. Joseph, Mich., July 25.—(AP)—Belief that a fair trial would not be given was his reason for not disclosing the hiding place of Benjamin Purnell, while he was being sought in connection with charges preferred by girl members of the colony, Edmund Bulley, member of the organization's advisory board, testified today in the state's dissolution suit against the "House of David."

The witness admitted he knew Purnell was in hiding in the "diamond house" on the colony's property at least two years of the time he was being sought. During direct examination by H. T. Dewhirst, colony lawyer, Bulley testified that he talked with Purnell several times and that prior to the time he learned of the colony's whereabouts, he "had a suspicion where he was." He expressed his belief of Purnell's innocence of charges of immorality brought against him.

Bulley supplemented his testimony with the assertion that Purnell now is confined to his bed by ill health. It is his opinion, he answered in reply to a question by Prosecuting Attorney Wilson, that Purnell is not physically able to appear in court during this action.

After the day's session, however, Dewhirst declared the colony leader will appear as a witness, although he declined to set a date.

Pale, Thin Anemic Blood Can Bring You Every Ill The Flesh Is Heir To

RICH, RED BLOOD IS DEATH TO GERMS

Use Mineral-Tone to Build Up Red Corpuscles in Your Blood and Keep Your Body Strong and Healthy.

"Since time began the blood has been recognized as the stream of human life."

We have all learned that the blood is the force that drives us on. Blood is to our bodies what gasoline is to an automobile. If gasoline is adulterated or watery, the motor chokes and sputters; the carburetor or some other part gets out of order and often it will not run.

So with the blood and the human body; when the blood is thin, weak and pale the body does not function properly—some organ is always going wrong, and one disorder leads to another, often serious or fatal.

Could anything, therefore, be more vital or have more powerful possibilities for the health or distress of the body than this priceless fluid, the blood—our stream of life?

Every tissue of the body is dependent upon it for nourishment. And if the blood is allowed to become thin, weak and anemic, it can bring you every ill the flesh is heir to: Rheumatism, stomach troubles, boils, eczema and many others; and doctors will tell you, from lack of proper blood nourishment.

MRS. NANCY J. HUDLOW, Who calls herself a living proof of the power of Mineral-Tone to relieve rheumatism.

and are carried to all parts of the body by weak, pale blood? Build up red corpuscles in your blood with Mineral-Tone. Enjoy life to the full. Amazing as it may seem, a gallon of this health-giving mineral contains more iron (the kind the body can use and needs) than a carload of spinach, the favorite of all iron-containing foods.

Mineral-Tone is no patent medicine, but is the creation of nature itself. It is not made with chemicals, drugs, opiates or alcohol; but is taken from the heart of the earth in its pure, natural state, and comes to you as nature made it.

There is only one deposit of this precious mineral known to mankind, and today thousands are praising it as the greatest health-builder of all time.

CHOKED, COULD NOT TALK AS GAS CROWDED HEART

Atlanta Woman Suffered Agonies With Acute Indigestion Until She Learned About Mineral-Tone.

"Mineral-Tone is the best medicine on the market for stomach trouble," is the verdict of Mrs. N. L. Kimball, 1719 Evans Drive, Atlanta, who suffered terribly from acute indigestion, she writes.

"My stomach was in awful condition before I got this medicine. Why I used to have spells of acute indigestion that put me in bed. I had a bad spell here not long ago after I had retired and I suffered so I could not even call my husband to tell him what was wrong."

"I am now on my second bottle of Mineral-Tone, and I haven't had an attack of stomach trouble since I took the first dose. It couldn't be anything else, for I haven't taken a single dose of anything else since I have been on this treatment. Mineral-Tone convinced me it really has merit."

Try it yourself if you are rundown and ailing. Use it even if you are only slightly ill. It may easily save you many terrible years of pain and suffering. Mineral-Tone and Min-Lax which is recommended to clean out the system before starting the Mineral-Tone treatment, are both to be found at your druggists.

SAUNDERS TO RECEIVE PICKENS GIRLS ON VISIT

William E. Saunders, councilman from the twelfth ward and public relations representative of the Black & White Cab company, Monday was named official representative of the city government by Mayor L. N. Ragsdale to receive about 75 members of the "H" club from Pickens county, when that body visits Atlanta Thursday.

Mr. Ragsdale and the city will be hosts of the girls on their tour of the city and the cab company has offered free transportation to the young ladies who are coming to the south's gay city as guests of Sam Tate, Georgia marble king.

Concessions at Grant park will be offered free of any charge to the visitors, and the Metropolitan, Rialto and Georgia theaters have agreed to invite the young women to be guests at a performance during the afternoon.

Some of the girls have never been inside a motion picture house, have never ridden a street car or seen one and many of them have never seen high class vaudeville such as Keith has billed for this week at the Georgia. It is said. They are mountain girl students and are here for one day.

The Atlanta Police band will welcome them at noon Thursday at the city hall, when they pay an official call on the mayor and members of general council, who will gather to receive them.

Pictures will be made of the group at that time.

GOD IS DECLARED "ONLY SURE BET"

BY ULDINE UTLEY

New York, July 25.—(United News).—"I would not gamble like business men do, God is the only sure bet," Uldine Utley, city evangelist, said when she visited the New York stock exchange Monday.

Uldine's visit to the exchange followed her third talk in the financial district which she made to a group gathered at a street corner.

She watched the milling on the floor and was impressed with "the great faith business men have in each other in making such large deals. But I fear the faith is only material," she said, "and half the members are in need of God's counsel."

SUN, SHOWERS, WEATHER MENU FOR CITY TODAY

Unsettled conditions, such as gave Atlanta one of its wettest Julys in many an equinox, are again brewing, according to E. von Herrmann, government meteorologist, in announcing today's forecast of fair weather in the forenoon with probably light showers later in the day.

No change in temperature is predicted, the weatherman stated, giving Monday's range of the mercury column as 69 to 83 degrees.

While the former period marked by a conglomeration of rain and sunshine lasted more than half a month, duration of the predicted unsettled conditions was not indicated.

Mr. von Herrmann's forecast of showers for this afternoon came as a sudden change after a period of ideal summer weather. Thermometer fluctuations are expected to remain within the same limits prevailing Monday.

LEGAL AID SOCIETY CITED TO APPEAR IN CONTEMPT CASE

The Legal Aid society, of which J. L. R. Boyd is general counsel and J. E. Goodwin agent, was cited Monday to show cause on August 1st as to why it should not be found in contempt of court in answer to injunction proceedings brought against it recently by P. J. Jackson, Judge John D. Humphries signed this court order, which was filed by the law firm of Drake & Stinchcomb.

The petition alleged that the society and Goodwin, as agent, violated an injunction granted by Judge Humphries on May 18 which prohibited the society from distributing certain circulars regarding salary buyers, money lenders and alleged "loan sharks."

Guinnett Warden And Six Others Hurt When Truck Overturns

Lawrenceville, Ga., July 25.—(Special).—One of the large Guinnett county trucks containing 13 men overturned on the Buford highway on Monday morning, severely injuring Warden J. A. Davis and six other men.

Davis was cut above the eyes and left side injured; Clyde Phillips, driver, had his face badly skinned and nose hurt; Ed Erby, convict, face cut; Bob Dixon, convict, shoulder bruised; Spurge Dewberry, convict, arm forced; Zack Warren, convict, leg hurt; Bruce Kelley, convict, nose broken and large hole cut under chin. The remainder of the crew were considerably shaken up, but not seriously injured.

The accident occurred about seven miles out of Lawrenceville, and it is said was caused when the steering gear jammed, while passing over a concrete culvert, the arm of which prevented the big truck from completely turning turtle and probably proving fatal to some of the men. The injured men were brought back to Lawrenceville and given medical attention.

"Port of Brunswick" To Be Christened In Detroit This Week

Detroit, July 25.—(AP).—Paul R. Redfern, scheduled to leave Detroit Wednesday on his flight to Brunswick, Ga., where he will set out during the first part of August on a monoplane flight to Brazil, announced today that the installation of an inductor compass in his plane would force postponement of his hop from Detroit until the latter part of the week.

U. S.-NICARAGUAN POLICY IS SCORED

Durham, N. H., July 25.—(AP).—The United States by its recent acts in Nicaragua has caused "a trusting and friendly people in a sister republic to view our actions with fear, distrust and hatred," Thomas P. Moffatt, former member of the mixed claims commission in Nicaragua, declared today. Speaking at the opening session of the Latin-American relations conference at the University of New Hampshire reviewed relations with Nicaragua since 1909.

The American people have "soiled their hands by dipping them in the polluted waters of commercialized diplomacy," he said. The recent battle between United States marines and Nicaraguans, he asserted, represented "the cost in human lives of an attempt to maintain our will on a weak nation and maintain in power a minority government."

Dr. Adolphe de Castro, editor of the Week in Mexico, said that perfect freedom of worship existed in Mexico and Isaac J. Cox, head of the history department at Northwestern university, said that the Mexicans were "a people of much promise, notwithstanding many obvious handicaps."

"Philosophically considered," said Dr. de Castro, "the religious situation in Mexico is fairly good. The churches, as houses of worship, are open and ceremonial practice by legal admitted clergymen, Catholic, Protestant, Jew and others, is absolutely unimpeded."

LEVINE WON'T FLY COLUMBIA TO U. S.

(Copyright, 1927, for The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.) Paris, July 25.—Charles A. Levine, who flew from New York to Germany with Clarence D. Chamberlin, will not make the return flight in the Belanca plane Columbia, but the plane will be flown from Paris for New York by Lieutenant Maurice Drouhin and another French pilot.

Out at Le Bourget field, where he, Lieutenant Drouhin Kinkaid, and Chief Engineer Carisi are working on the plane, Levine refused to affirm or deny this, but Lieutenant Drouhin said in French, which Levine could not understand, "perhaps we will have a surprise in a couple of days in regard to the crew and it is certain that the French will not be disappointed by our announcement."

Levine's confessed inability to understand why the French are so at his robbing them of an all-French flight, it is said, led to the decision. Chamberlin since Chamberlin pointed out the dangers of flying back in the Belanca plane, Levine has been less keen for the project.

The fact that Mrs. Levine's air of despair and nervousness in evidence when her husband announced that he would return to New York by air, has entirely disappeared in the last few days, according to the report that the Columbia will return with all French crew.

GEORGIA ASSOCIATION DRIVE AIDED IN GRIFFIN

Word that 25 leading business men of Griffin would meet at 8 o'clock Thursday night to plan full cooperation with the Georgia association gave impetus locally Monday to the Atlanta phase of the association's state-wide campaign for $100,000 for national advertising and fund settlement.

The Griffin movement is headed by E. H. Griffin, vice president of the Savings Bank of Griffin, who is chairman of the association's campaign committee. Outstanding figures in the business and agricultural life of the town compose the chief working force.

J. M. Patterson, of Albany, president of the Pecan Growers' association of Georgia, telegraphed Monday that the Albany campaign would be completed this week and that the quota there would be over-subscribed.

The Covington Kiwanis club, acting for Newton county, will renew the campaign there Thursday, following an address by H. C. Morrell of the campaign forces. The movement is led in Covington by Dr. C. L. Snowden, editor of the Covington News, and Major J. A. Maxwell, wealthy livestock farmer who has located in the district through the Georgia association.

In Dublin the campaign will open Tuesday afternoon with the leadership of Sam B. Talley, of the association's forces. Counties of the Dublin district include Wilkinson, Baldwin, Laurens, Johnson, Emanuel, Candler, Treutlen, Montgomery, Toombs, Wheeler, Telfair and Wilcox.

BIRGER PLANNING NEW TRIAL PLEA

Benton, Ill., July 25.—(AP).—Denial reports that Charles Birger, counsel for southern Illinois gang leader, had confessed to them, his attorneys today went forward with plans for a new trial. Circuit Judge Charles H. Miller set Thursday to hear arguments on the motion.

The attorneys said the new trial would be sought on the ground that the trial record contained several errors, and if the motion were denied they would appeal to the state supreme court.

Charles A. Karch, one of the gangster's attorneys, said emphatically that he stated Birger had made a full confession to his lawyers. Asked whether he planned to continue as a defense lawyer for the gangster, he said "not true."

Graves Assails Muscle Shoals Policy of U. S.

Mackinac Island, Mich., July 25.—(AP).—Twenty governors and the official representatives of three other state executives today devoted themselves to discussions of the condition of agriculture and interest of the states in hydroelectric power.

In an address which provoked a flood of discussion by Governors Dorn, Utah; Hamilton, Iowa; Christensen, Minnesota; Brewster, of Maine, and former Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama, assailed the government policy of selling electric power developed by government plants at Muscle Shoals.

He drew a distinction between dams constructed for aiding navigation and those for developing power. He said that by the action of the government in selling power to the Alabama Power company at 2 mills a kilowatt hour, more than $100,000,000 worth of property was turned to competitive commercial use without the state being able to collect any taxes. He insisted that the property should be kept in standby condition ready to produce nitrogen for war purposes, or turning out nitrogen for fertilizer for American agriculture, also a national security.

Governor Dorn, of Utah, said that for the government to step in and construct Boulder dam in the Colorado river would be usurpation of state rights and that while he sympathized with California's desire for a dam, Utah people insisted the state's rights be conserved.

Dr. Pinchot projected an observation that "so far as law is concerned the federal government has the right to build Boulder dam."

GRAND JURY BEGINS PROBE OF ALLEGED NEGRO FLOGGING

Birmingham, Ala., July 25.—(AP).—More than a score of witnesses will appear tomorrow when a Jefferson county grand jury opens its inquiry into the flogging of Arthur Hill, negro, who was said to have been beaten by a masked man several weeks ago.

Hill told county authorities that following his refusal to sell a valuable tract of land he was taken from his home and severely flogged, and in fear of further whippings, he transferred his property for a sum alleged to have been one-sixth of its value.

Approximately 100 subpoenas are being prepared by the state for witnesses at the trial at Oneonta August 1 of seven men indicted by the Blount county grand jury last week for complicity in the flogging of Jeff Calloway, 19-year-old farm youth.

INTER-RACIAL BODY APPOINTS GEORGIAN AS NEW SECRETARY

Richmond, Va., July 25.—(AP).—Appointment of Lester Hargrett, graduate of the University of Georgia in 1925, as secretary of the commission on inter-racial cooperation, succeeding the late Robert W. Miles, was announced today by Dr. R. E. Blackwell, president of Randolph-Macon college, and state chairman of the commission.

Mr. Hargrett is a native of Georgia, the son of T. T. Hargrett, president of the Live Oak, Perry & Gulf railway of Florida. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, and in his senior year at the University of Georgia was editor of The Cracker, the official student magazine. He is serving as instructor in the departments of English and Latin at Tulane university. Because of his interest in inter-racial work, he was chosen as successor to Mr. Miles.

TIPS ON TRIPS

Where shall we go? Maybe a Constitution Motorlog will help you decide the question. These four are just off the press and the roads are just being driven during the past few weeks with the new "Constitution" motorlogs in order to make them of the greatest value to you:

1. The beaches of Georgia and the Carolinas.

2. The beaches and cities of the Florida peninsula.

3. The beaches of the gulf coast and cities of Alabama, Mississippi, and New Orleans, Memphis and Hot Springs.

4. The southern mountain resort section.

Either of them may be had at The Constitution Travel Bureau, or through your dealer, for 25 cents.

BRUNSWICK—If you like the beaches, why not go to Brunswick and St. Simons. The road is paved nearly half the way. The remainder is good in dry weather and is not the worst you might find in wet weather. The new Atlantic Beach Motorlog will direct you over the several routes.

NEW YORK TRAFFIC STRIKE DUE TODAY

New York, July 25.—(United News).—Realization has come slowly to New Yorkers that transit facilities which serve to unite five sprawling boroughs may be interrupted severely at midnight Tuesday.

Despite peace-making efforts of city officials it begins to appear that the Annunziato Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees will call a strike of its members and that at least 50 per cent of the workers on elevated and elevated lines will leave their posts.

Preparations for moving the city's millions to and from their work in an emergency went forward hurriedly.

The big uptown barn of the Interborough Rapid Transit company became a provisional camp, where strike-breakers gathered under guard. Already a thousand men have reported to the traction officials and more are on the way.

The strike-breakers arrived from Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Washington. A group of 200 is en route from Chicago. Many men were picked up here.

Police set about insuring against demonstrations such as invariably accompany a conflict of labor and capital. Commissioner Warren sent out a departmental order to all precinct captains asking that he be informed as to how many patrolmen would be needed to prevent outbreaks.

Peace measures seemed to promise little success.

Invitation Refused. Mayor Walker formally extended invitations to transit companies to meet with labor union leaders Tuesday. Frank Hadley, president of the I. R. T., already had announced he would not attend such a conference.

The question of the right to organize is the principal issue in dispute with higher wages and improved working conditions to be asked later if the employees win the privilege of their own union.

PROH AGENTS MAKE BIG WEEK-END HAULS

Activities of federal prohibition agents in north Georgia last week-end netted 28,100 gallons of still beer, 22 stills with a total daily capacity of 1,100 gallons, a quantity of corn liquor and nine prisoners, according to reports to Howard P. Wright, administrator for the Atlanta district. One of the largest captures was in Meriwether county, where a still with a daily output of 250 gallons was found.

1 of 9 Escaped Reform School Inmates Killed On Hospital Bed

Granite, Okla., July 25.—(AP).—Eight boys escaped from the state reformatory here today but were captured a short time later after one of them, Eddie Shaw, 19, had been shot and killed by a Beckham county officer.

Shaw was killed after one of the group of escaped prisoners fired at officers who halted them near Sayre. The officers returned the fire, killing Shaw and slightly wounding two others.

Mrs. W. A. Waters, warden of the reformatory, said that the eight youths, all first timers, were cutting weeds near the roadside at the prison property, when suddenly one of them knocked Bert Johnson, the guard, unconscious.

The boys then halted a motorist, forced him from his car at the point of a gun then had taken from Johnson, and drove toward Sayre, where they were intercepted by county officers.

Shaw was convicted of burglary in Oklahoma county.

50,000 Persons Greet Lindbergh In Concord, N. H.

Concord, N. H., July 25.—(United News).—Host to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh today for the second time, New Hampshire extended a warm official greeting to the trans-Atlantic aviator who was unexpectedly forced down here Saturday by fog.

A crowd estimated at 50,000 was on hand to welcome Lindbergh and his famous plane when they arrived from Old Orchard, Maine, where he was forced down a second time on Sunday.

Fair weather favored him on the flight here, the eighth city he has visited on his national air tour.

Lindbergh was guest of honor at a banquet tonight at which Senator George H. Moses was also to speak.

Tuesday the aviator flies to Springfield, Vt., where an enthusiastic reception is planned.

A Message to Underweight Men and Women

The supremely good health building tonic that is also the one great weight producer known to modern science the country over is McCoy's Tablets.

They build flesh where flesh is needed—sunken cheeks, neck and chest—and many a man and woman, skinny and scrawny have thanked McCoy's after a few weeks treatment for the decided improvement in looks and figure.

Many times the increase in weight is astonishing—one exceedingly thin woman gained 10 pounds in 22 days.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking 4 six-cent boxes of McCoy's Tablets or 2 One Dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

The name McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets has been shortened—just ask for McCoy's Tablets at Jacobs' drug stores or any drug store in America.—(adv.)

Oath of Office Given Senator

Athens, Ga., July 25.—(AP).—In a hospital bed where he has been confined for more than two months and surrounded by friends and high dignitaries of the state, L. F. Johnson, prominent Watkinsonville citizen, was sworn in here today as a member of the state senate, representing the 27th district.

A lengthy illness had prevented him from attending the present session of the legislature and a special delegation composed of members of both houses and a representative of the appellate court came here for the induction formalities. The oath was administered by Judge Alexander W. Stephens, of Atlanta.

Numerous friends from his native Oconee county, where he is editor of the Oconee Enterprise, attended the ceremony, which was conducted in his room at St. Mary's hospital. Afterward the official delegation and other visitors were entertained at dinner at the state college of agriculture by President Andrew M. Soule.

Senator E. B. Dykes, of Vienna, president of the senate, and D. F. McClellan, secretary of the upper house, headed the delegation, which also included Representatives Osborne, of Oconee; Erwin and Bennett, of Clarke; Senator A. S. J. Stovall, Elberton, and Sam J. Slate, state auditor.

Mr. Johnson, who is 47 years of age, also served as a member of the senate in 1925 and 1926 and during the special session of the latter year.

It was the second time during the present session that a member of the assembly has been sworn in from a sick room. Little over a week ago, a legislative committee journeyed to Macon to administer the oath to Senator Nat R. Winslow, of the 22d district.

PLUNKET FREED WITH 9 OTHERS IN ASSASSINATION

Dublin, Ireland, July 25.—(AP).—George Plunkett, son of Count Plunkett, and the nine men arrested with him on a charge of conspiracy in connection with the assassination of Vice President Kevin O'Higgins on July 10, were discharged this morning, no evidence being offered against them.

There was no demonstration in the courtroom, but a small crowd outside cheered loudly on hearing the decision of the presiding magistrate.

Theater Reviews

"Dearest Enemy" Captures Audience at Erlanger

BY PAUL STEVENSON.

By far the prettiest and decidedly one of the most enjoyable of the summer series of light operas, "Dearest Enemy," offered by the Atlanta Municipal Opera company at the Erlanger theater Monday night, scored the highest hit of the season.

With dainty Madeleine McMahon playing the leading role and with Richard Powell providing some fun-making which he has hitherto withheld, "Dearest Enemy" easily won the hearts and approval of the audience.

There is much more, a whole lot more, to "Dearest Enemy" than a few musical numbers. It is a highly dramatic offering; there is a love scene in it that would make the veriest matinee idol turn green with envy and there is some real acting on the part of Miss McMahon and several of the members of the supporting company, which harks back to the acting that Sidney Blackmer and Madge Kennedy performed around these parts in the early summer.

A lack of adjectives has always been the plight of a reviewer trying to describe the work of that charming and lovable little woman, Madeleine McMahon, and if there is any person in Atlanta capable of describing her work out there at the Erlanger theater last night, it is a second Shakespeare. It is sufficient to say that there never was a more attractive little person to appear in any musical show than little Miss McMahon Monday night.

Along with Miss McMahon were at least three other stars who won special favor. Mr. Powell produced beyond any doubt his finest performance of the season. His grotesque dances, his exceedingly fine conception of a "drunken general" of the old revolutionary war, his fine conception of a real role, the first he has had during his Atlanta engagement, won the spontaneous applause of the audience.

Sudworth Frasier, in a romantic role which gave him a real opportunity to sing, also scored a big personal hit in "Dearest Enemy." His songs with Miss McMahon were the big successes of the show and his acting also was unusually good.

That excellent artist, Louis Templeman, does some fine acting in the part of a British "Red Coat," while Miss Alice Mackenzie gives a very attractive interpretation of a somewhat minor role. Mr. Charles Gallagher plays another minor role impressively while young George Baker, Jr., scored one of the big hits of the show as General George Washington.

This young man does some excellent work in this season's operas and his performance Monday night augurs quite well indeed for a real career in the future should he decide to take up the stage as a profession.

Leide's 'Comeback' Features Fine Show at Metropolitan

BY HERR McCUSKER.

Left! Right! One—two!

Figuratively speaking, Enrico Leide,

Atlanta's favorite orchestra leader, knocked the patrons out of their seats and staged his own "comeback" with his animated baton at the Metropolitan

Monday.

And nobody bothered "fool!"

Featuring an unusually attractive bill, Leide's "Return From Elba" occasioned vociferous applause at both afternoon and night performances, together with a right nice working girl and some six or eight weeks.

One might say that Leide has an able "supporting cast" in his come-pils, abuses sufficiently to throw a glow on Colleen.

The plot is light enough to be dis-gested by epics where are fed up on the same old dish. Virtue triumphs in the end—Colleen marries well and the customary "gold digger" sees the error of her mercenary ways at the fad-out. Blushing unseen somewhere in New York is an artistic capturer who contributes much towards the ultimate success of the picture.

If you go for Colleen—you'll like her in this spot.

The news reel catches Bobby Jones

at St. Andrews course in Scotland in the act of winning the British open golf championship for the second time. Then there's an interesting close-up of "the champion legs of America" as personified in the limbs of one Gladys Turner, of New Jersey. An Atlanta girl, Leona Newell, who won second prize, is also shown.

And there are several intimate views of Michael, the new king of Rumania;

his noble mother, grandma and late predecessor on the throne.

"Giddy Gobbles," a Christy comedy, is almost as bad as usual, but it isn't long and one can learn to persevere if one was properly brought up.

Home Run by Reese, Giant Third-Sacker, Brings in Only Run.

New York, July 25.—(AP)—The New York Nationals closed their home stand here today with a 1-10 victory over the Pittsburgh club making it again knocking the Pirates out of first place in the league. The Chicago Cubs, although idle, assumed the lead once more.

The game was a tight pitching duel between Larry Benton an Ray Kremer and was decided by a home run by Andy Reese, young giant third baseman. Kremer had the Giants hitting into the air throughout the game and the home run which beat him also was a high fly. It grazed the screen in front of a left-field box and fell into the field. Under the ground rules it was a home run.

A double play, started by Jackson, prevented the Pirates from scoring in their half of the seventh.

Neither team could score in the early innings, although the Giants threatened in the second frame and again in the third. Kremer steadied after granting two hits in the third and Jackson was called out on strikes, to retire the side. The pitching duel was even up at the end of the third inning, as Benton also granted two safeties, which did no damage.

Crackers Take Second Straight From Volunteers, 13 to 7

BY DICK HAWKINS.

Something Funny Somewhere.

These here Crackers have been funny animals since the opening of the season and now they are getting funnier. It will not be difficult for Atlanta fans—such of them as are intrepid enough to venture to Spillcr's last part of last week—to imagine the Crackers as a team easily beaten by the lowly Chattanooga Outlooks but seeing them through the news as a team which beats Fred Johnson and then proceeds to rap three Nashville hurlers for 13 hits and just that many runs to win the second game.

Such a performance as that of the Crackers in Nashville Sunday and Monday might not be particularly surprising but for the fact that it was the mighty Fred Johnson, erstwhile Cracker jinx, who went down in the Sunday fracas, and Frey, rated as one of the best in the league who started for the Vols in Monday's game.

There is also another remarkable part to the story. Two Cracker pitchers were the only hurlers to mount the mound for the Atlantics in the two games and each won a game. If that has happened before in this hectic season we fail to remember it. If the Crackers ARE rejuvenated, as they seem to be for the time being, they can still end the season in the first division. YES THEY CAN.

A Monkey Tournery.

The first round of the flagrant newspaper tournament is over and so far as can be ascertained from early reports there were no dead and surprisingly few injuries.

At the finish of a hectic round there is one lasting impression to be carried away. That impression is FORE!! At one time on the road heard "fore" from three different directions and strangely enough sizzling golf balls came from those three different directions almost simultaneously.

The construction of the West End course is such that there is bound to be some interference, but at the beginning of the press tourney all out of bounds shots except those on the road holes were abolished and now it would not be surprising if all the insurance companies refused to handle newspaper golfers as risks.

Birds Capture Roost.

Isn't it a familiar sight to look at the standings in the Southern league and see the Pelicans of New Orleans on top of the list.

The answer is easy. The Pelicans have a well-balance team.

For a time the Crackers got good pitching and good hitting together. Then they were on top. Their pitching fell off and hitting kept up—and they went down. Then on a recent road trip their hurling picked up noticeably and the Cracker batsmen were paralyzed in the face of good pitching. That same condition is evident in the history of the Barons in past few weeks. Nashville has had at least three of the best hurlers in the league all season, but their stick work is little less than pitiful most of the time. But the Pelicans—they are batting along with a few good hurlers and average hitting to pile up the old average. THAT'S THE MEDICINE.

10,000 STUDENTS PLAN CELEBRATION ON EDUCATION DAY

The educational work in Atlanta will be brought before the entire citizenry in the form of a monster demonstration by 10,000 pupils on a day set aside as Educational Day. This year being made by the education committee of the chamber of commerce materialize, according to a statement made Monday by Colonel J. C. Woodward, chairman, president of Georgia Military academy.

Always Heard That the Southern Business College Is The Best in Atlanta, Says The Winner of the Scholarship

Farmers' Sons and Daughters, Among Others, Now Enrolling for Business Courses at the S. S. and Business University.

Forty Pupils Have Gone to Positions Recently.

Enrolling for business courses around at the Southern Shorthand and Business University, just as though September had arrived.

Every mail is bringing applications for entrance in August. The summer is delightfully pleasant, so there's no reason to wait until September to begin Business Training, say many who are enrolling these days at the Southern.

Three Months Saved. Another thing the people are finding out about the Southern: Its pupils finish their courses of study in from two to three months less time than do the pupils in other Business Schools in this city, and, at the same time, they are more efficient when leaving school.

Plenty of Teachers. And, this saving of time is accomplished by the Southern's pupils because they have three times as many bookkeeping and shorthand teachers to instruct and drill them as are to be found in the other schools of this section.

Think of what a benefit, young man, young woman, by attending the Southern. A stenographer, secretary or bookkeeper, receiving from $75 to $100 per month for two or three months before your friend or acquaintance, who entered another school at the same time, finishes his course!

Best Bookkeeping Extant. Then, again, the Southern teaches the "Twenty-first Century" bookkeeping, the most complete and up-to-date system in existence. Ask for this system and learn no other, or, as a bookkeeper, you'd be a back number.

Winner of Scholarship. The Shorthand contest scholarship was won by Miss Mildred Moore, whose transcript contained only one unimportant error. She made the word "sentiments" out of the outline that stood for "sentimentalities."

Following is a correct transcript of the Shorthand notes which appeared in the newspapers:

The Shorthand That Catches Big Words.

Dear Sir: Engaging you as a salesman, we wish to give you the following advice which may be of benefit.

In promulgating your esoteric cogitations or articulating superficial sentimentalities or psychological observations, beware of platitudinous ponderosity.

Let your extemporaneous descantings and unprepared expatiations have intelligibility and veracious vivacity without redoundant or thrasonic bombast.

Sedulously avoid a polysyllabic profundity, pitaceous vacuity, ventiloquous verbosity.

Let verisimilitude characterize your elucidations and rarely indulge in jocosity.

In other words, talk plainly, sensibly, truthfully, purely, and do not use big words.

Very respectfully,

Southern Shorthand and Business University.

To save time is to lengthen life. Be honest in all your dealings.

Miss Moore has entered the Southern and is delighted and doing well.

The following letter of acknowledgment:

which would terminate at Grant field with a review by the secretary of war and the adjutant general of the United States would be a feature of the day.

An Educational Week, to be staged at some later date, has also been proposed. The close of the week a pageant showing the growth of education in Atlanta would be staged. This pageant would be held on Grant field with civic clubs, school children and college students taking part.

Members of civic clubs have been urged to visit the institutions and gain first hand knowledge of the work carried on.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS. Hearing by a subcommittee of the senate judiciary committee appointed to examine the Stone Mountain Memorial association for information in connection with a measure which seeks to grant the association right of eminent domain to acquire a plot of ground in front of the mountain was continued Monday afternoon until 9 o'clock Friday morning.

The hearing was continued when John Ashley Jones, chairman of the association's finance committee, explained that Hollins N. Randolph, president, and other officers asked to be present today, and when Senator Ed Rivers, chairman of the subcommittee, asked that records of the association be brought to the committee room Mr. Jones suggested that, more time be given to gather statistical matter asked by the subcommittee, since the auditor was out of the city at present.

Mr. Jones, together with Judge John Bale, past commander of the army of Tennessee, were the ones to appear before the hearing.

Several Not Present. Mr. Jones began by saying that Hollins N. Randolph, president of the association, had been out of the city for several days, had only returned Monday morning and was attending a meeting of the board of trustees of the Oglethorpe University which he understood had been called prior to the committee's announcement of the hearing. Several other officers of the association, asked to attend the hearing, also were out of the city Monday, he said.

Mr. Jones then said he wished to make a statement and went into what he said were reports about what the association intended to do at the mountain. He was questioned by the committee as to the original specifications for the monument and present plans.

Mr. Jones said that a report that the size of the memorial was to be 125 feet in height and that the present plans called for a figure 125 feet never been planned to make the equestrian figure of General Lee more than 150 feet in height and that present plans called for a figure 125 feet in height. He had been questioned by the committee as to a statement which Chairman Rivers said had been made to a member of the committee on an inspection trip to the mountain, in which an official of the association was quoted as saying the original size was 240 feet.

Not Inquisitorial. Mr. Jones then described his own connection with the association, saying he had given his time gratuitously to the work.

As the questioning proceeded, Chairman Rivers said that it "was not the purpose of the subcommittee to investigate the association as an inquisitorial body, but to look into association affairs to see if they were being so handled as to justify the body's approval of the measure pending."

Judge Bale, at one point during the brief hearing, stated that the nature of the hearing seemed such as to throw the burden of proof on the defendant.

Chairman Rivers replied that it had been charged at the open meeting a few days ago that the association's affairs "had been mismanaged and that the memorial would never be finished." He said Mr. Randolph declared at that time that "these statements are untrue and the records of the association are open to the committee at any time to verify it."

"We are not concerned with any fight between the association and the U. S. or anybody," said Chairman Rivers, "but we are concerned only with obtaining information for ourselves before acting on this measure."

Request "Fair Enough." Mr. Jones said he thought the committee request was "fair enough."

Mr. Jones asked if the committee would not prefer to come to the office of the association when the auditor returned and examined the records there.

"I think not," said Chairman Rivers, who insisted that the records be brought to the committee room.

Judge Bale suggested they were so voluminous that it would take a truck to haul them. Chairman Rivers said, however, what the committee wanted was a statement as to receipts and disbursements which he said should be in short form.

In concluding the hearing, Chairman Rivers, again referring to the purpose of the committee as one solely to seek information, asked Mr. Jones to "tell Mr. Randolph that we expect him to furnish the information."

ATLANTA TO INVITE RECREATION BODY

Atlanta will invite the fifteenth annual convention of the National Recreational congress to meet in this city, it was learned Monday when Councilman John A. White, of the fourth ward and chairman of the parks committee of city council, announced that a delegation of Atlantians will make a bid for the session at the fourteenth session to be held October 3-7 at Memphis.

Mayor I. N. Ragsdale, city council and the Atlanta convention bureau will join in the drive to bring the recreational directors of the nation to Atlanta next year, and letters will be directed to President Joseph Lee and directors in the near future outlining the advantages of the south's Gate City for the convention and explaining the unprecedented progress of the Atlanta park and playground system in the past several years.

At the same time Mr. White announced that all former receipt records of municipal recreation centers were shattered Saturday and Sunday when the grand total was $1,526.50. City-owned pools were the greatest attraction and netted $800 for the two days. Other main attractions which brought large returns were listed as follows:

Cyclorama $331.35; ponies $222.70; Piedmont golf course $182.25; Key golf course $100.25; Piedmont; tennis courts $50.10 and Grant tennis courts $31.10.

Traffic congestion in the larger parks of the city is furnishing a real problem, according to L. L. Wallis, superintendent of parks and playgrounds. Hundreds of automobiles caused traffic jams in Piedmont and Grant parks Sunday afternoon and each holiday the problem of directing the traffic grows. Remedial measures are being sought by the park committee in cooperation with Harry York, chairman of the traffic committee of council. Mr. York also is a member of the park committee and has promised that his committee will cooperate in any way possible to relieve the congestion.

11,663 ATTEND SUNDAY SCHOOLS; BAPTISTS LEAD

With 324 present, the Agoga class of the Baptist tabernacle led the list of 22 Sunday schools in attendance Sunday, according to announcements from the Georgia Sunday School association. The total attendance for the 22 schools, according to the association, was 11,663. The Tabernacle Baptist Sunday school, with 1,440, led the schools in attendance.

How to Banish Piles

Thousands Bless Dr. Leonhardt, the Physician Who Discovered This Common Sense Remedy.

If you think that the surgeon's knife is the only method of escape from the misery of piles, it's because you haven't heard of the new treatment known as Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID.

This Doctor's treatment is internal. By experimenting, he discovered the cause of piles and then went further and compounded a remedy that would remove the cause.

Every pile sufferer should benefit by his discovery and so that there will be no doubting or delay, Jacobs' drug stores and all druggists are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee that it will do as stated or money back.

On that honorable basis every sufferer should secure a package of Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID today.—(adv.)

Miss Golden Sparks Tells How Cuticura Healed Pimples

"My face began to break out with small pimples. They started on my forehead, then spread over my face. They would scale over, then peel off and another lot would form. They itched and burned so that I could hardly sleep, and were so sore that they bothered me when I washed my face. The pimples also broke out on my body, and were so sore I could hardly stand my clothing. The trouble lasted about two years."

"My mother advised Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. I purchased more and in about two months I was healed."

(Signed) Miss Golden Sparks, Celeste, Texas, June 5, 1926.

Use Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum to promote and maintain skin purity, skin comfort and skin health; the Soap to cleanse and purify, Ointment to soothe and heal and Talcum to powder.

Keep Mr. Ointment in a bottle. Talcum in a box. Soap in a box. Sample each free. Address: Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. 8, Malden, Mass. 02148. Cuticura Shaving Stick 25c.

Houston Street Extension Plans Are Under Way

With grading of Cain street expected to start next month, preparatory to its paving from Peachtree to Houston street, plans are being pushed to extend Houston street from Randolph to Lake avenue, according to an announcement Monday by J. P. Allen, president of the recently organized Cain Street Improvement association.

Completion of the project would provide a paved thoroughfare, free of car lines, from Inman Park and Druid Hills to Peachtree street.

Impetus to the initiative undertaking was given about a week ago when the Fulton county commission authorized the grading of Cain street from Peachtree to Houston. The paving is to be done under the "baby bond" plan, and the signing of petitions by property owners is under way now, Allen stated.

Activity in the region of the proposed developments was revealed with the recent purchase by the Massell Realty company of a vacant lot on the corner of Cain and Boulevard from George H. Faus. The large women's specialty shop of J. P. Allen and company is nearing completion at the corner of Peachtree and Cain, and the Economy Drug company has announced a plant at the intersection of Jackson and Cain.

Dr. Albert Cochran, Jr., son of Dr. A. H. Cochran, former member of city council from the second ward, Monday was convalescing at Wesley Memorial hospital from an emergency appendicitis operation performed Saturday.

Young Dr. Cochran was graduated from the liberal arts school of Emory university in 1923, and from the Emory University medical college last spring. He is well known in fraternal circles and young people's church activities, and has a large group of friends who will be glad to learn of his improved condition.

He was taking his interne course at Wesley Memorial and was stricken while on duty. His condition grew momentarily more precarious and immediate operation was imperative.

CONCRETE carries the mortgage!

WASTED... one hundred and five dollars every year! That is what avoidable repairs and replacements cost the average home-owner. Prevent this needless loss by building right in the first place. Use concrete.

Concrete lends itself to any architectural treatment. Ideal for foundations, porches, roofs, floors, walls and partitions. Keeps heat in and cold out. For exteriors—cement stucco, in your choice of beautiful colors and textures. Requires no paint. Resists the ravages of weather.

Concrete is time-proof, fire-proof—expense-proof. It saves enough in fuel, insurance and depreciation to carry the mortgage.

Concrete properly made of Lone Star Cement meets the most exacting requirements. You can rely on Lone Star Cement. Just as thousands of cement-users do from Maine to Texas and from Florida to the Dakotas.

Visitors Divide Social Honors With Brides and Brides-Elect

Attractive visitors vie with brides-elect and recent brides in the social honors dispersed by society's members today. An unusually large number of mid-summer visitors are being entertained in the city and they lend charm and interest to the many parties planned in their honor. Among the number to be honored today are Misses Flora and Ella Crawford Jenkins, of Columbus, the guests of Mrs. Julian Robinson; Miss Virginia Baldwin, of Lynchburg, Va., who is visiting Miss Frances Spalding; Miss Flora Sutcliffe, of Louisville, Ky., the guest of Miss Adair McCarty; Miss Phoebe Edmunds, of Halifax, Va., the guest of Miss Anna Etheridge; Mrs. Kenneth Keyes, of Miami, Fla., who is with her mother, Mrs. Irvin Thomas; Miss Flovia Edge, of Kennett Square, Pa., the guest of Miss Rebecca Ashcraft; Misses Charlotte Price and Martha Wilson, of New Orleans, and Miss Evelyn Daniel, of Columbus, who are visiting Mrs. Harriett Oliver; Miss Mary Wood, of Washington, D. C.; Miss Helen Peck, of Spartanburg, S. C.; and Miss Mary Lloyd Davis, of LaGrange. Miss Catherine Candler's informal luncheon will honor Mrs. William D. Ellis, III, one of the most attractive of the recent brides, and Miss Ella Blanton Smith, a bride-elect of the week, will form the inspiration for the luncheon to be given by Mrs. H. Clay Moore, Jr. The Tuesday afternoon tea at the executive mansion is another highlight on the day's calendar of events. These informal "at homes" inaugurated by Mrs. Harriett Oliver, wife of Georgia's governor, assemble each week many members of the general assembly, of the legislature, and of the senate, together with their wives, affording an excellent opportunity for them, as well as other members of Atlanta society, to meet and know the first lady of Georgia.

Miss Gorley Weds Fred Pippin At Quiet Ceremony

Of state-wide cordial interest was the wedding of Miss Mary Gorley and Fred Pippin, which was solemnized at high noon Sunday, July 24, at the home of Dr. Elam F. Dempsey, Oxford, Ga. The ceremony was solemnized in the presence of relatives and a few friends. Rev. N. P. Manning and Rev. Frank J. Pippin, brother of the groom, officiating. The ceremony was impressive in its simplicity. The Oxford home was decorated with beautiful foliage and flowers from an old-fashioned flower garden. The perfect blonde bride was most charming and lovely in her wedding attire. Mrs. Pippin is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Gorley, of Eaton. Mr. Pippin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Pippin, of Round Oak. He is a popular young business man and very prominent in civic and social affairs. He graduated from Emory University academy in 1922 and attended Mercer university until 1924. After the quiet ceremony the charming young couple left for an extended tour through the Carolinas, where they will visit Columbia, Wilmington, Asheville and other points of interest. After the wedding tour they will make their home in Round Oak, Ga.

Miss Oliver's Guests To Be Entertained.

Additional parties planned in compliment to Miss Harriett Oliver and the trio of schoolmates who are visiting her, Misses Charlotte Price and Martha Wilson, of New Orleans, and Miss Evelyn Daniel, of Columbus, will be the luncheon at which Mrs. Victor H. Montgomery will be hostess, Wednesday, at her home on Washita avenue. The Kappa Alpha Theta luncheon at first planned for Friday, July 29, will be held at the Atlanta Woman's club Monday, July 31.

Misses Jenkins Are Feted Visitors.

Complimenting Misses Flora and Ella Crawford Jenkins, of Columbus, Misses Helena Callaway and Boyce Lokey were hostesses at a swimming party and tea at the Piedmont Driving club and Monday afternoon. The Misses Jenkins are the attractive and popular guests of Mrs. Julian Robinson at her home on Ponce de Leon avenue. The tea table was placed on the terrace of the club and adorned in the center with a French basket filled with brightly tinted garden flowers. The young hostesses were assisted in entertaining by their mothers, Mrs. Frank Callaway and Mrs. Hugh Lokey.

Miss Lucille Gorin Weds Mr. Hughes.

The marriage of Miss Lucille Gorin and Walter Hughes, of Savannah, is of cordial interest to Atlantans, as the bride has often visited Miss Anna Harriett Shewmake at her home on West Peachtree street. Mr. and Mrs. Hughes are motoring through North Carolina, and will make their home in Savannah.

Delegates and Alternates Elected by Auxiliary.

A meeting of the council of the Woman's Auxiliaries of the United Spanish War Veterans, department of Georgia, was held at the Kimball House last Friday with Mrs. Daisy Conner, department president, presiding.

Unique Summer Hygiene For Safer Wearing of Lightest Chiffons, Etc.

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND
Registered Nurse

KOTEX is the new hygiene that has largely ended the use of old-time "pads" among women. A scientific creation, it offers an end to three great embarrassments of old methods. Filled with Cellucotton wadding—the world's super-absorbent—it is 5 times more absorbent than ordinary cotton pads. Scientifically treated, it deodorizes. Made of a special material, it discards easily as tissue. No laundry, no embarrassment. 8 in 10 better-class women now employ it. Doctors and nurses urge it.

Get Kotex for protection you know is real. See that box you buy is marked "Kotex." If it isn't, it is not genuine Kotex.

Remove Freckles and All Blemishes

When the skin becomes disfigured by freckles, tan, pimples or other blemishes, all beauty of the face is hidden. To remove these skin defects, it is best to peel them off with pure mercurized wax. Obtain an ounce at any drug store or beauty counter and use as directed. The wax peels off the thin outer skin, gently but surely, removing the ugly mask. With the removal of the outside scale, the underlying skin is revealed soft and smooth, clear and white, with the rosy bloom of girlhood on its cheeks. Mercurized wax brings out the hidden beauty.—(adv.)

Miss Malaier Weds Luther Alverson At Church Ceremony

Among the midsummer weddings of interest was that of Miss Margaret Malaier and Luther Alverson, which was solemnized at 8 o'clock Monday evening at the Capitol View Baptist church. The officiating ministers were Rev. W. Lee Cuts, pastor of the church, and the Rev. J. C. Alverson, father of the groom.

The church was handsomely decorated for the occasion, the altar being banked with palms and ferns, out of which rose floor baskets filled with tall white gladioli, and three cathedral candelabra, one centering the mass of palms and the other two flanking either side. Southern smilax garlanded the chancel rail and the chandeliers of the chancel.

A program of nuptial music, featuring a harp solo, was rendered by Mrs. Walter Bedard and the members of her orchestra. Miss Hortense Hughes sang "At Dawning" just preceding the entrance of the bride party.

The bride, who also acted as usher, entered the church flanked by Mrs. Alverson, brother of the groom, and Julian May.

Misses Margaret Flippin and Dorothy Dooly were the bridesmaids. Miss Dooly was beautifully gowned in green tulle with a wide white sash and a band of rhinestones in her hair, and Miss Flippin wore pink tulle with a full skirt of pink tulle and finished with a pink moire sash and a wreath of pale-shaded French flowers. Bouquets of Dresden-shaded summer flowers completed their costumes.

The bride's cousin, Miss Ruby Womack, was the maid of honor. Her gown of filmy white chiffon was elaborately beaded in rhinestones and posed over a slip of deep pink satin.

Mrs. G. B. Haley, sister of the groom, was the matron of honor, wearing a becoming model of orchid georgette encrusted with rhinestones. Both the maid and the matron of honor carried arm bouquets of Dresden-shaded garden flowers showered with valley lilies.

Little Misses Dorothy Scott and Virginia Welch were the flower girls, wearing dainty frocks of ruffled pink tulle, and the ringbearer was Lamar Glass, small nephew of the groom.

The bride entered the church with her father, H. E. Malaier, who gave her in marriage, and they were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Carl Hartman.

The striking beauty of the bride was enhanced by her wedding gown of soft white satin, fashioned robe de style, the close-fitting bodice embroidered in a superb design of rhinestones and centered with a rhinestone buckle. Her veil of tulle was fastened to her hair by two strands of tiny orange blossoms, finished with an upstanding ruche of tulle across the back. A shower bouquet of bride roses and valley lilies completed the bridal ensemble.

Immediately following the ceremony at the church an informal reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Malaier, in Bolton.

During the evening Mr. Alverson and his bride left for a wedding journey to points of interest in Florida.

SYNOPSIS

A band of crooks, stumbling on the fact that Sir Adrian Shale's wife is alive, when supposedly she had died six months before in Italy, arrives at Grantwick, Sir Adrian's home, for the purpose of blackmailing him. Miss Winchell, one of the crooks posing as a widow, obtains a letter of introduction to Sir Adrian, who is kind to her and her "daughter," Doris. The girl is beautiful and possesses the only shred of respectability the gang can lay claim to. She is in reality an orphan whom Miss Winchell has befriended. One of the crooks, Beauty Bill Gibbons, asks Doris to marry him. She refuses. A few days later Sir Adrian announces he would like to marry Doris. She tells him she knows his wife is alive, and demands fifty thousand pounds for silence. Sir Adrian does not believe her, but agrees to pay the money. She returns to London immediately, and discovers that Sir Adrian has indeed married her. Somewhat disturbed by Miss Winchell's story, Sir Adrian decides to make an investigation. His wife's former maid, Anna Ferguson, failed to come back to England after Lady Shale's death in Italy. In attempting to find her, Sir Adrian calls on her sister, Madam George, a fashionable London dress-maker, who is unable to give him any information. Doris rebels at the life she is forced to lead with Miss Winchell and her husband, Uncle Charles, and takes a job as maid at Madam George's. Uncle Charles, ill, sends for Doris, and while she is with him he dies. She is late in returning to Madam George's, and is scolded by Madam's husband for refusing to tell where she's been.

INSTALLMENT XXVI

BILL FAILS TO KEEP AN APPOINTMENT.

Bill wondered all the same what had occurred between Miss Doris and Doris. Well, he wasn't going to question Miss Doris, at any rate. She would tell him in time no doubt, but at the moment he was glad enough not to have to take sides. They sat in uneasy silence for a while, then Miss Doris spoke again.

"Georgette's worth a good amount, I should think. With a bit of luck we'll get three—she screwed up her eyes in thought,—"perhaps four thousand out of her. I'll ask for five, anyhow. And we'll see what we get it this time. No more of your Shale business. I'll call there tomorrow and say I want to open an account, and then make an appointment for the end of the week. If we can manage the far job on Monday or Tuesday, that will give Georgette a day or two to get the money, and we can be off by the middle of next week."

They went carefully into details. Bill was to find rooms in the neighborhood and make inquiries through channels known only to themselves, to try to discover whether the police were looking for Mrs. Charles Hobson or himself.

The vagabond gang, or all that was left of it, had started work again, and when Miss Doris and Bill met the next evening they were sanguine of success.

Bill had written to Doris asking her to telegraph him when they could meet the following night, and Doris, as she read the letter in the bright rays of a street lamp outside of the postoffice, was none too happy.

It had been an enormous relief to her when she learned Bill had gone to Birmingham, and since then she had almost succeeded in putting him from her mind. Beauty Bill fitted so ill into the new life she was living, a quiet, dull, but soothing life at Miss Dawes' house, near St. Oeyth's church. Miss Dawes had been wonderfully kind when she had arrived there, pale and frightened, so early on that Saturday evening, which she needed her hurried flight from Dover street.

But now she must see Bill. Doris told herself. She would keep her promise no matter how unwelcome the interview might be. She went back to the postoffice and telegraphed: "Seven o'clock outside the Palace theater, Doris," and returned to the hotel sat at heart, yet ashamed of herself for her sadness.

And the following evening found her on the wide pavement in front of the theater, trying hard to persuade herself that she was glad she was going to see Bill again.

Seven o'clock came, but no Bill. Five minutes passed, and still his coarsely handsome face did not show among the hurrying crowd. A vague hope began to rise in Doris' mind, try as she would to beat it down.

She turned to look at the big frames of photographs on the front of the building for the dozenth time, when her heart leaped suddenly at the sound of a voice at her shoulder, and she swung round to face a quietly dressed, soldierly looking man whose features were in some way familiar to her.

He was perfectly courteous as he raised his self felt hat, but his words alarmed her.

"Excuse me, but are you Miss Doris?" he asked.

Doris flushed. "Yes," she answered in some confusion. "That is—that is my name."

The stranger smiled as he said politely. "You must forgive me for speaking to you, but you are waiting for William Gibbons, aren't you?"

"I am," Doris was beginning to be annoyed. "But why—have you come from him? What is your reason for speaking to me?"

"It's about Gibbons," the stranger replied in a conciliatory manner. "Perhaps you don't remember me?"

"I don't," said Doris firmly. "And if you have any message, please give it to me now."

But as she spoke, it flashed into her memory where she had seen this man before. The color left her cheeks and her eyes opened wide in dismay. This was the man, the inspector of police, who had in so kindly a manner urged her to leave the little Westminster house on the night Uncle Charles had died.

"Oh! Yes, I know now," she stammered. "What do you want? Why do you want to see me?"

The detective seemed sorry for her. "You needn't worry," he said. "I shall give you as little trouble as I possibly can, but there are a few questions I must ask you and—Mr. Gibbons won't be keeping the appointment. In fact, he drew a telegram from his pocket,—"he never received your message, I had to take it instead."

"What do you want me to do?" Doris's voice was trembling. A cold dread was upon her that somehow, by some means, she had been dragged into the net of the law. A vivid, terrifying vision of police courts, of jails, arose in her mind. She could not reason; her will seemed paralyzed.

The inspector was speaking again, still in that same even voice. "Let's take a little stroll in a less busy street, Miss Doris," he said, as one friend to another. "I don't suppose we shall be more than a minute or two in settling our business."

Doris followed him without protest; she had not the courage to refuse, and he led her talking easily of everyday things, into the quiet of Soho square.

"And now," he asked suddenly, and Doris was all too conscious of the steel behind the velvet, "about Gibbons. I want him. Where can I find him?"

"I don't know," she replied. "I don't know where he is, but he is in a coldly persuasive voice that added to her terror."

"I don't know; really I don't know," she replied. "I don't know where he is, but he is in a coldly persuasive voice that added to her terror."

"Well, he doesn't live there," Ingle laughed cynically. "When did you last see him?"

"It was three weeks ago—the night I saw you in Westminster."

"And you haven't met him since?"

"No."

"Not at Smith's motor garage for instance, eh?" The detective stopped under a lamp and stared intently at the girl.

"No. I don't even know where it is," she answered without hesitation. Ingle was puzzled. He couldn't decide what to make of this girl. Decent girls, as a rule, were not mixed up with well known crooks, yet this girl did not strike him as being a wrong 'un. He had expected that after her first alarm had passed she would have lied glibly, and in tripping her in her lies he would have arrived at the truth. But his experience of human nature—crook human nature—largely told him that she was speaking the truth.

Stoic tactics evidently would not work here. He changed his method. Once more he became the urbane, genial Mr. David Ingle.

"Would you tell me your name, Miss Doris—that is if you don't mind?" he asked amiably.

"Winchell," Doris replied, still half dazed with fear.

"Well, Miss Winchell," Ingle went on in a fatherly way, "this must have been painful for you I know; but unfortunately, you and I have a duty to perform to the community, and I'm sure you'll help me in every way. I take it you don't know much about Mr. Gibbons?"

The query was subtly put. Ingle anticipated a negative, which would lead to his next sharp question: "Then why were you meeting him?" But Doris all unconsciously countered his move.

Stocks Long Idle Display Strength in Pools' Hands

Announcement of new models by several of the large manufacturers, rumors of special dividend action on General Motors and reports of large current earnings furnished the background for the advance in the motor stocks. General Motors sold up to a new high for all time at 220 3-8 makthe seventh successive day in which the stock has exceeded its previous best price. Studebaker reported earnings of $2.63 a share in the second quarter, as against $2.44 for the second quarter of 1926.

Merchandising Strong.
Merchandising and textile issues

Woolworth was bid up more than 5 points to 155 1/8, the highest price since the declaration of the 50 per cent stock dividend last year. Munsingwear recorded a similar gain by touching a new top at 49. New peak prices also were registered by Oppenheim Collins, American Tobacco, Lorillard

Railroad shares were rather sluggish in the early trading but they moved up with the industrials in the last hour. Net gains of a point or two were recorded by New Haven, Reading, Canadian Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio

Stock Island and New York Central. The Southern Pacific recorded net income of $4,408,597 for June, a decrease of $344,303 below that of the corresponding movement last year.

Commodities Moved.

Commodity prices narrowed within narrow and tight limits. Cotton moved up 23 to 23 points and coffee declined 14 to 23. Grain prices slanted downward, losses ranging from 3-8 to 3-10 cents.

Another upturn in Japanese yen which again carried them above the 47-cent level, was the feature in the foreign exchange trading. French francs were slightly easier, with demand bills quoted around 3.91 cents. The dollar exchange was firmer, demand bills at 1.49 and gold around $4.85 3/32. The discount on the Canadian dollar has become sufficiently large to attract gold shipments here from Montreal.
